STAT
Sanitized Copy Approved for Release 2011/03/08 : CIA-RDP91-00587R000100030022-6

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE C-6

WASHINGTON POST
24 September 1985

OBITUARIES

Virginia Wei Chur Lee, 59, a retired analyst with the Central Intelligence Agency, died of cancer Sept. 22 at the National Institutes of Health.

Mrs. Lee, a resident of Kensington, retired from the CIA in 1984 after 30 years with the agency.

She was born in Soochow, China, and graduated from Soochow University with a degree in economics. In 1949 she moved to Honolulu. During the 1950s she traveled and lived in the Far East, including Taiwan, the Philippines and Japan, while working for the CIA. She moved to the Washington area in 1959.

Mrs. Lee was a member of the Chinese Community Church in Washington.

Survivors include her husband, Jack Q. Lee of Kensington; two daughters, Susan S.K. Lee of Washington and MaryAnn S.W. Lee of New York City; a son, Allan J.C. Lee of Chatham, N.J.; a brother, Dr. Richard Chiang of New York City; a sister, Dr. Priscilla Yee of San Francisco, and one grandchild.

Sanitized Copy Approved for Release 2011/03/08 : CIA-RDP91-00587R000100030022-6